"We've only just begun . . ." The school year begins with a series of grunts, groans and even sighs of relief. Students and teachers begin the 1970-71 school term amid mixed emotions.

The teachers greet the new year and new students with a smile. They quickly return to the familiar halls and desks, being very anxious to educate the future society of tomorrow. Preparing our students to succeed in the world is their main goal.

Not far behind the teachers are the students. The seniors return with sighs of anxiety and hope to finish immediately and successfully their last year of high school.

Juniors come back to await the sign of representation to prove they are full-fledged juniors—those grand and glorious class rings. And of course, they look forward to their fantabulous junior prom and magazine sale.

Sophomores and freshmen look forward to their candy sales and their long years left in high school, and without fail, count the days left in the year.

Seventh and eighth graders walk the halls in awe, wondering if they'll ever make it through the year. Grudgingly, they trek the halls, dreaming of the many years ahead until they are finally in their grand and spectacular senior year in high school.

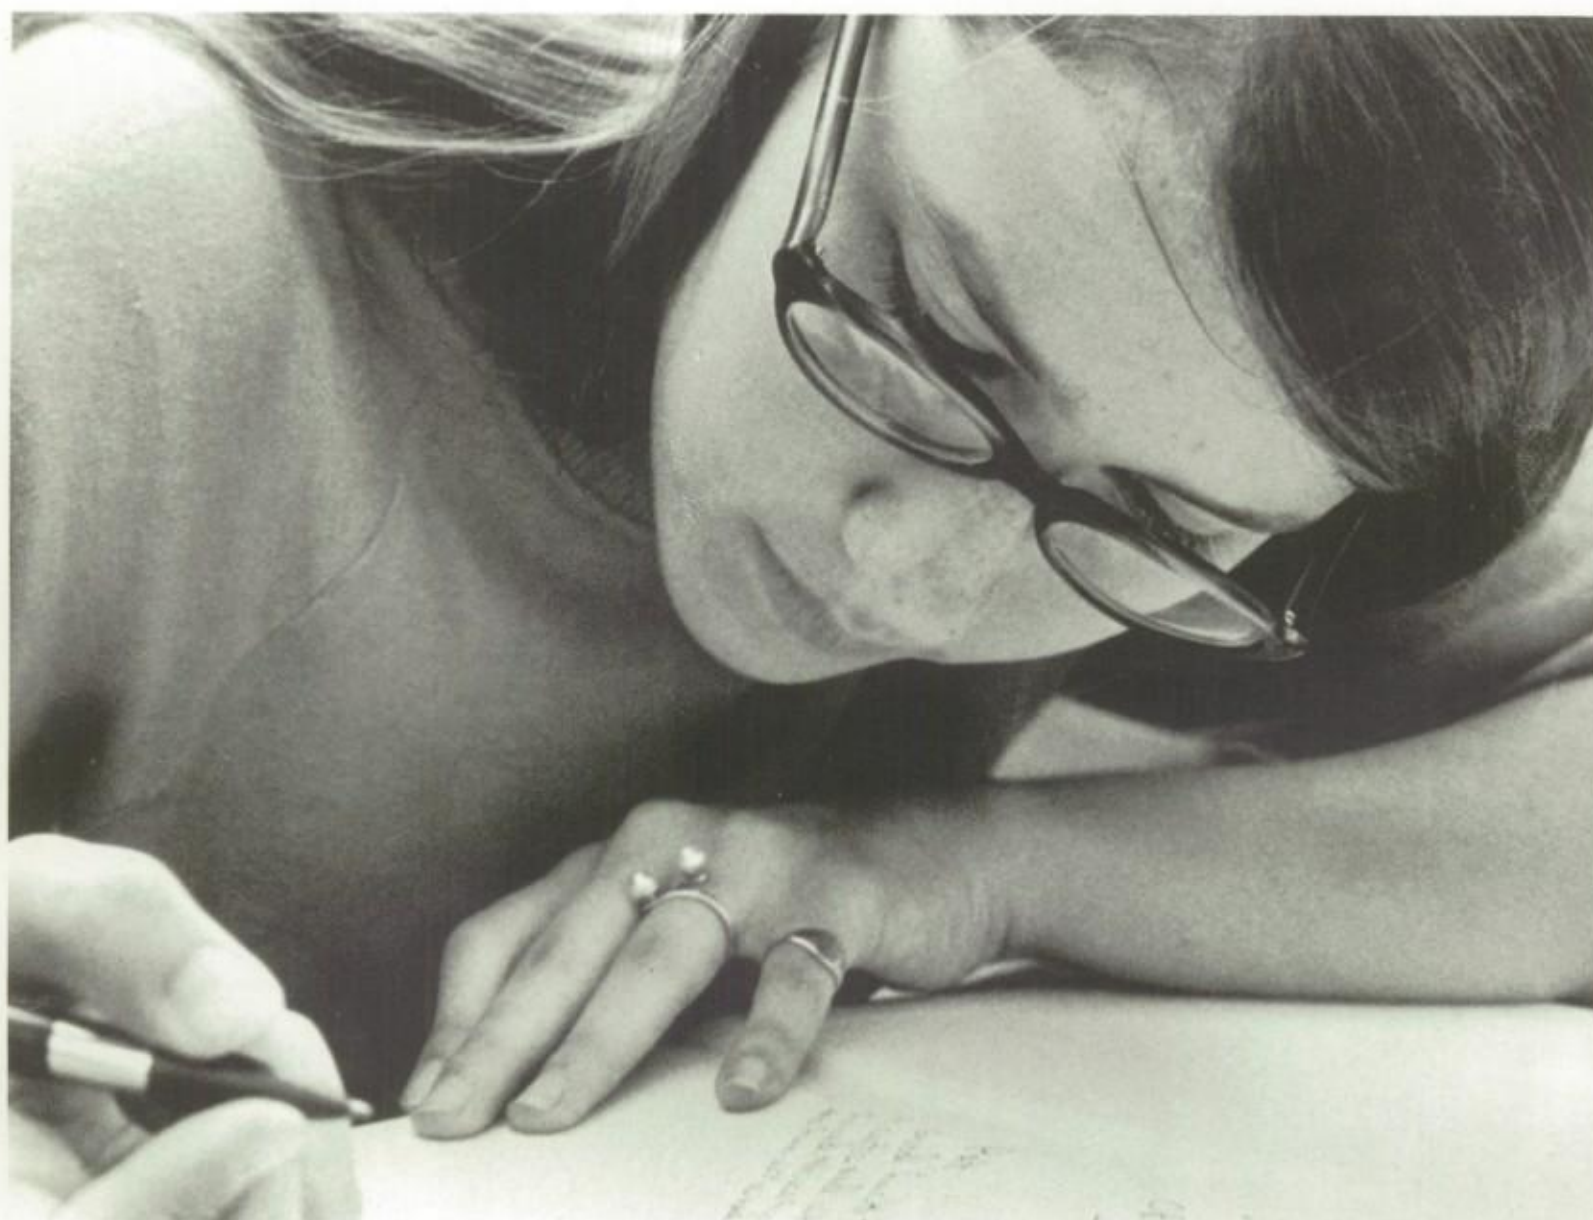

At the beginning of the year, it seems as though the year will last forever. That's the way it always starts. "We've only just begun . . ." And we leave . . .

Concerned citizens lend their talents to the board of education

Providing a well organized educational system for the Northeastern Beaver County School District is the main purpose of the Board of Education. These worthy citizens supervise school administration and promote community interest in area schools. While maintaining old principles and establishing new ideas, the Board recommends new programs and activities to better the school. Studying present problems and foreseeing future ones also occupy much of their time. This legislative body formulates governing policies which prove to be fair to both students and faculty. The Board of Education executes this challenging and rewarding job to the satisfaction of a growing community.

Mr. Meehan was a welcome addition to Riverside's administrative staff. Ed Coates, Denny Fisher.

Capable administrators in a position of importance

Seated: Kenneth H. Yonkee, Superintendent of Schools; Edward L. Phillips, Principal. Standing: David E. Brooks, Assistant Principal; James A. Meehan, Assistant Principal.

The administration of RHS is another word for the backbone of Riverside. Concerned men help students by listening to their problems and questions. By offering advice and solutions, the administrators show that they care. Helping the high school to run a smooth course isn't always easy. There are more problems in today's world than there ever were before. However, these men do their best to combat problems by enforcing rules meant for the protection of the students. Loyalty to the school on their part helps to set up high standards. The school district continues to prosper and progress under their capable guidance.

Mr. Brooks is presented with a plaque by Riverside's band members in recognition of all the years he devoted to the band.

Counselors concern themselves with students

A helping hand is extended; problems are discussed; a student leaves contented, knowing his problem no longer exists. Welcome to the Guidance Department. Dedicated counselors are on hand to aid students in selecting subjects. Seniors seeking advice concerning college and future employment will find assistance here. The Guidance Department is the headquarters for college boards, aptitude, mental and vocational tests. Confidential discussions with a counselor on home, school, or "just plain problems" are always available.

Standing: Daniel Oliastro, Junior High Guidance Counselor. Seated: Franklin Marziano, Senior High Guidance Counselor.

Foreign languages unveil new worlds

Christina Pelouze, Cheryl Morbacher, Gail Davis, Jeanne Fletcher — Departmental Chairman, Rose Kaufman.

Hola! Guten tag! Bonjour! Hello! All four phrases mean basically the same thing. The only difference is that each is in a different language. Just as there are different races and colors, there are different foreign languages. At Riverside, there are three foreign languages: French, German and Spanish. In each class, one may learn new vocabulary words, the language's alphabet, and translations. The lab is an important factor in the Language Department. It helps to give students the opportunity to hear the foreign language being spoken. Customs and cultures of different countries are also studied. Foreign languages add variety to a student's courses.

Math = teachers + students working together

Frederick Frisk, Susan Davies, John Marnicio, Joseph Fisher, Joseph DiConstanzo — Departmental Chairman, Eugene Pagani, Joseph Yost.

Who sponged the sponge?

(Modern math + algebra) + (plane geometry + trigonometry) + advanced math = math courses offered at RHS. The math department is composed of diligent teachers doing their best to introduce "the wonderful world of symbols, integers and square roots" to their pupils. As one progresses from seventh grade in modern math up to advanced math in his senior year, he will cover all of the fundamental aspects of their math curriculum. Besides broadening students' outlooks on math, math teachers endeavor to teach their students the significant aspects of math after graduation. Hardly anything is done without some use of math. From housewives' chores to scientists' calculations, math is an essential part of life.

Instructors presented music as a source of inspiration

"March 8-5, keep in step;" "rehearsal tonight;" and "AH-OH-EE," are all frequently spoken phrases around the Music Department. The department includes various musical groups which consist of students of all ages and abilities. Voice class provides a study of the human voice and techniques associated with singing. Music appreciation is offered to students seeking a clearer understanding of music. The bands, majorettes, color guards, and drill team are all kept busy with parades and half-time shows. Both instrumental and vocal students present numerous concerts throughout the year. The choirs and bands are under the leadership of capable directors with a sincere interest in the students.

Choir members were kept busy with several concerts which they gave throughout the year.

Seated: Kenneth Phillips — Departmental Chairman. Standing: John M. Miller, Frederick Perino, Michael Poff.

No, this isn't the library! M. Rodgers and Mr. Fogle make last minute preparations for publication of the High Tide.

Theodore Simoff, Karen Wilson, Kent Kunkle, Leslie Kubitz.

Mrs. McMurdy ponders a question presented to her by one of her students.

Experience is the best teacher for the student teacher. Working under reliable, experienced teachers helps them discover the tricks of the trade. With four years of college as a tool, they enter a rewarding world of teaching. Students with problems and varied personalities confront them for the first time. While teaching students, they study such subjects as patience, confidence and human nature. With forty pairs of eyes staring at them in their first class, they are somewhat fearful of what is to come. As their semester moves on though, this fear melts into confidence, and these young men and women are prepared for an enjoyable future.

Special ed. opens the door to brighter futures

Sandra Sprinker — Special Education.

Training in all fields is available in The Special Education Department. Subjects such as history, math, English, reading and writing are taught here. Many of the students work in various areas in the community during the morning hours as training for future employment. Basics in budgeting and economizing are taught also. Students are armed with skills which will be helpful in later years. Home economics and industrial arts are a part of their schedule. Students learn about what particular field they will be most successful in and how to go about training for such employment. The Special Education Department contains a wealth of knowledge.

Teachers exhibited their school spirit on the day before a football game by wearing white socks and tennis shoes. Mr. Miller, Mrs. Will.

Science presents a challenge to today's students

Seated: Christine Cody, Arlene Will, Kathryn Gatti. Standing: Robert Frederick — Departmental Chairman, George Churchin, John Kemp, Thomas Whetzel, Thomas Downing, James LaRose.

Carnations presented by the F.T.A. adorned faculty members on the day of open house. Mr. Marnicio.

Collecting leaves, flowers, bugs and experimenting with smelly brews all combine to form science at Riverside. In general science courses, students are informed of basic laws of science and nature. With an understanding of protons, electrons, and neutrons, chemistry students experiment with intricate solutions and mixtures. Goggles, aprons, and test tubes are the gear of these young scientists. Physics students study the laws of sound waves and electricity. Kingdoms, phylums, families, orders and species are broken down by biology students. By probing into various forms of animal life, these students discover the world around them. The Science Department doesn't leave a stone unturned in the world of science.

Library

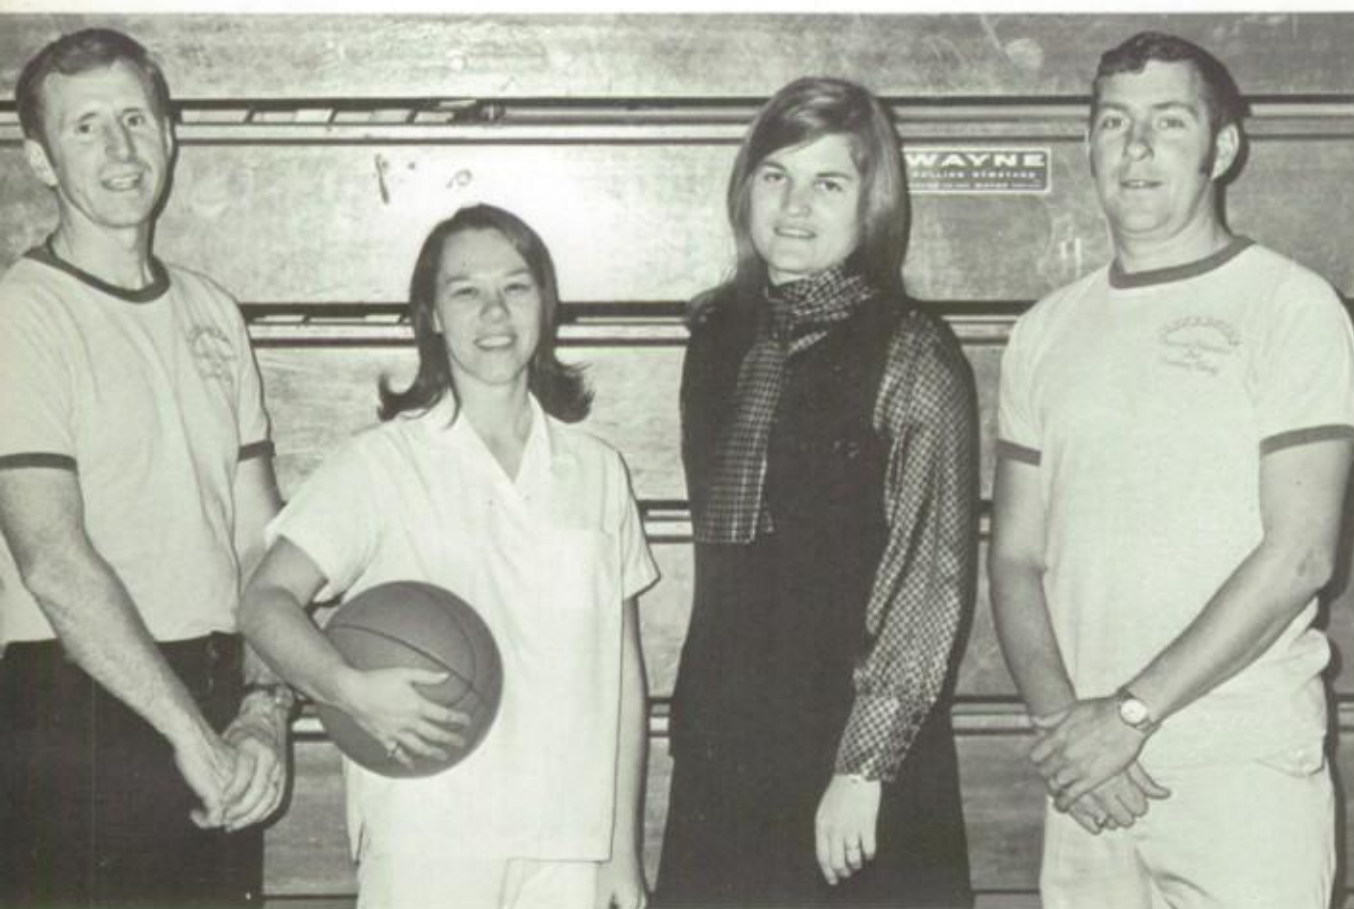

A center of student study is The Riverside High School Library. Where else can one study a major battle, one of Shakespeare's works, a composer, a nation and numerous other topics all in one room? Recreational reading areas are provided for students seeking enjoyment and relaxation, and students doing research have independent study booths at their disposal. Here, books; records; magazines; and pamphlets can be found on nearly every subject. Students are taught how to use the library in library science classes. Librarians and assistants are always on hand to aid students in finding information. Shelves of knowledge can be found here and all students are welcome.

Mary C. Savor, David Kaufman — Head Librarian.

Achieve physical fitness in gym

Groans and moans and laughs and screams are all sounds that can be heard from the gym. The addition of new gym classes such as: modern dancing, square and folk dancing, and life saving help to relieve some of the pressure of challenging mental classwork. Riverside's students can build sound minds and bodies while achieving coordination and good posture through the physical fitness program. During gym classes, the boys and girls learn to coordinate their minds with their muscles. Throughout these classes the students know that physical education is as important as any other class because here they learn sportsmanship and good character.

Robert Brough, Patricia Suders, Sandra Mathews — Girls Departmental Chairman, Thomas George — Boys Departmental Chairman.

Susan Stilley, Barbara Decock, Elaine Karnes — Departmental Chairman.

Home ec.

In the Home Economics Room students advance from a simple skirt pattern to a complicated suit and from a cookie recipe to a gourmet's meal. Here, girls prepare themselves with the necessary skills they will need as future homemakers. Qualified instructors supervise as the students experiment with dress designs and tasty dishes. In bachelor living classes, young men learn basic skills which will benefit them in later life. Home and family living classes prepare students to cope with the future problems of rearing children and keeping a family. Both girls and boys learn talents which will remain with them for their entire life.

Industrial arts fosters new skills

Give your tired brain a rest and work with your hands; display a God given talent and receive a grade for it. Open the doors to the shop and open the doors to a future of carpentry, metal work, electronics or auto mechanics. And if you're all thumbs and enjoy art, but are not exactly up to working in oils, there is always mechanical drawing. Here, students learn to read some of the most complex blueprints, and are given a chance to create some of their own. Industrial arts shines a little vocational light on an institution that ordinarily delves in academic achievements.

Joseph Milnes — School Attendance Officer, Delores Zak — Attendance Secretary.

Perhaps the most important department in school curriculum is that of English. Under capable leadership, students learn to speak, read and write their own language. Shakespeare, Twain, and Hemingway all come to life in literature classes. Students overcome the initial fear of public speaking with confidence and ease in speech classes. Beginning students are taught basics in pronouns, verbs and sentence structure to prepare them for advanced courses. Themes, essays, poems and term papers are all prepared by writing students. New courses such as creative writing, novel and religious literature all help provide a better English background for Riverside's students.

Commercial department

Health suite

Many faces can be seen in the Health Suite in one day. The Health Department of Riverside High School is run by Mrs. Maxine Kalcevic, R.N. She does an excellent job of curing ills and fixing injuries that come in at all times of the day. Whether there be a sprained ankle from gym class or an upset stomach from eating too much, the health department is always ready to help. During the year, Mrs. Kalcevic assists Dr. McPherson, physician, and Dr. Kikuska, dentist, in giving eye and ear tests, physicals and dental examinations to the students and athletes.

Louella Rotnour, Maryon Yahn, Maxine Kalcevic.

Typing proved to be an enjoyable and worthwhile class for many students. Earla Felix.

The swoosh of the typewriter cylinders, the click of the adding machines and the buzz of the other electric machines let you know that you are in the commercial department. This department contains a variety of courses that are available to all students, some of which are: personal typing, typing I and II, shorthand, book-keeping and business math. They sound like easy and glamorous courses, but really aren't. It takes a lot of dedication and hard work to make a good business student. The students perform many valuable services for the school as well as themselves. The commercial department provides students with great business opportunity.

Edna Bilkey — Departmental Chairman, Regis Luger, Mary Klindienst, Helen Lang, Susan Ursu.

Art department

The door decorating contest helped to get many students into the Christmas spirit.

Creativity, imagination and talent are all characteristic of the Art Department. The students begin their art education in the seventh and eighth grade. Here, they learn the basic concepts of art. After that, they may go on to further their education in this field. They work in oils, water colors, pencil sketches, etchings, chawks, sculptures and many other creative and imaginative media. Many of these pieces are displayed in the annual school art show, while others are put on display in various contests, some even placing. The art department, headed by well qualified instructors, is a great and important asset to our school.

There were many unique seasonal works of art created in Riverside's Art Department.

John Lucarelli, Norman Freshcorn — Departmental Chairman.

Reading is the key to education

Ronald Gibson, Rebecca Blair — Departmental Chairman.

Iva Rider, Helen Fisher, Charles Druschel, Jenny Druschel, Ernestine Tackacs.

S.R.A.? It's not a disease, merely a reading method. S.R.A. and the controlled reader are fundamental to the reading department. Their purposes are to increase a pupil's comprehension, vocabulary and reading speed. Homonyms, synonyms and analogies broaden the scope of word usage. Pronunciation is aided by the breaking of words into syllables. Book reports are given to prepare students for higher grades. Reading and acting out plays add to the variety of the reading course. Reading is not just "going by the book" all the time but the workable usage of this knowledge in everyday life. Reading is the very basis of education.

Maxine Miller, Janet Kelvington, Pat Stacy, Kay Thompson, Leona Weaver.

Custodial staff

David Schlemmer, Clyde Bowers.

Secretarial staff

If a rash of arthritis broke out in the office, the school would be in real trouble. Unlike the blind who read with their fingers, secretaries talk with theirs via the aid of the electric typewriter. Riverside's office girls seldom receive a break; they've no study halls and the constant chatter of their machines doesn't cease after the first week of June. If they are not typing announcements or locating stolen locks, they are beckoning to a teacher who has a call on line fifty-two. Automation may replace some people, but a machine has yet to be invented that can take the place of a Riverside secretary.

Patience and practice make a good driver

Beep! Honk! "Turn your indicator on." Crash!! These are only a few of the sounds that are heard while a teacher instructs a junior how to drive. Drivers education is broken into a two part program which consists of thirty hours of classroom study and six hours of behind the wheel training. During the classroom period, discussions and films are included to let the student know of his rights and obligations. Students are given the opportunity to drive a car and get acquainted with the situations they might encounter while driving. With the help of the teachers, they will all become better and more alert drivers.

Interested parents had an opportunity to speak with teachers on the night of open house. Miss Suders.

John C. Miller, Edward Ellenich — Departmental Chairman.

The cafeteria is an important and very frequently visited place for everyone. Even though some students carry their lunches, the ladies in the cafeteria still must provide a meal for over 1200 students and faculty members. These women handle the problem of getting a well-balanced meal every day and a variety of delicious foods every week. The cafeteria staff has many new faces, but still they carry out the job of providing a meal for Riverside High School with skillfulness and speed. Their job is not only to serve a prepared meal, but also to sell milk, ice cream, extra sandwiches and lunch tokens.

With a bit of imagination, history teachers attempt to resurrect fallen heroes and reenact forgotten battles. World War II ended in room 118, Napoleon fell in room 36, the stock market crashed in room 172, and congress met in room 169. Given the added advantage of hindsight, students can see what could have been, instead of what was, and what might have been, instead of what wasn't. In world cultures, students travel to alien lands at the glance of a page. Customs, costumes and character are some of the things the students learn of their foreign friends. Government provides for added insight to the complexities of a democratic republic and attempts are made at explaining the stock market and gross national product in economics class.

"A time for us, some day there will be . . ." How true these words were in the minds of the seniors as they entered grade school. These words served not only as a prom theme, but also represented the thoughts and dreams of a "someday" right on up to the senior year. Now, as they have reached that long awaited "someday," they reminisce, and anxiously await the future to see what it will bring. As they look forward to the future, they will never forget the memorable events of the past. Moments of happiness, sadness, joy, and despair are brought to mind. With a grin, they remember the spirited senior squaws with the battle cry of "scalp'em panthers." The hilarious Powder Puff game is also brought to mind. The seniors will proudly remember shivering together viewing the first 24 to 14 football victory. The Perfect Idiot, the talent show, and many other events involving long hours of work are now behind them. Among the memories are the class party, the dinner dance, and senior night with its fragrance of white mums. Only a few cherished tokens such as pictures, hats, pins, and rings remain. The memories are behind them now. A unit for so long must now divide, each individual going his own separate way. The "someday" has arrived. Tears will flow, but they will never drown out the fond memories of the class of 1971.

The school term is now at an end. But, sounds of "We've only just begun . . ." still ring through the air, but with a different meaning.

The year is over for the teachers, but many years remain and there are many more students to be taught.

The seniors have graduated. They now have their future to look forward to. Is it college, a job, a spouse, or what?

The juniors now have a senior year to look forward to. What will it bring for them?

The year has ended, and each student's high school years that are left, have decreased.

There's a lot to look forward to.
